

Any further relaxation of current ownership laws clearly goes against the American grain. Throughout its history, our country has thrived on a multitude of media voices. It would be a pity to reduce that multitude to a few, in the service of...what?